

ASSESSMENT

True or False: Security requirements are written in a formal language by dedicated security engineers and are specifically designed to address security issues.

True

False

Incorrect.

Security requirements are just like other functional or non-functional requirements and follow the same format and language. They simply address different concerns.